Cable Clicks.

Berlin, 14.—The reichstag, after a lively debate in which Bismarck made a vigorous speech of two hours duration, rejected the tobacco monopoly bill, 276 to 48. The reichstag will be prorogued on Saturday or Monday until autumn.

In the division on the tobacco monopoly bill some conservatives voted against government. Bismarck, in his speech, denied the truth of the assertion that he was incapable of governing with a parliament. He declared party government in Germany was impossible; that no one could govern with Richter's party in the majority. Let the reichstag, said he, institute other proposals for those of government, unless the reichstag regards the present state of things as absolutely excellent. Herr Bismarck said Bismarck had no political equal but he was on the road to ruin his great political reputation. Bismarck, again speaking, said: "Look at the magnificent trade done by the United States, done with protection duties, which are much higher than ours. Are we to take no example by them?" He declared the federal government would be diverted from their adhesion to protection duties by any resolutions that might be adopted.
